Betting on the needs of Lebanese citizens, innovative entrepreneurs launch a new product on the market, expected to become the next trending item. This initiative emerges in the context of a post-holiday sale season with big hopes.

Highly desirable yet affordable, the rising star on the market promises a quick economic boost that will impact the country on both the short term and the long term. This « unique tool for business and policy-making » as described by its creators, challenges the status quo and promotes a new economic model with impressive political prospects.

« No one can resist such an opportunity, » said the master mind behind the idea. Indeed, the product answers the hopes and needs of each and every citizen. « There is big vision behind this. You can build your own armed cells, plot military operations, and transport freely amounts of explosives for terrorist acts in the country for only 150 million Lebanese Pounds and 3 years of detention! » explains the expert.

A promising move in a country that badly needs it. Lebanese entrepreneurship will keep surprising us. More similar initiatives to come hopefully.
